ABSTRACT

This Directory is based on a survey of 1,234 federal libraries and information centers in the 50 states and the District of Columbia conducted in 1994. The survey was developed and funded by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) with the advice and guidance of a survey working group of the Federal Library and Information Center Committee of the Library of Congress and was conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau. The Directory is organized by branch of government (Legislative, Judicial, or Executive), by agency in the Legislative and Judicial Branches and by department in the Executive Branch. Within each department, agencies are listed alphabetically and within the agency, libraries and information centers are listed by state with the states arranged alphabetically. Each library and information center has four entries: its name, its address, the name and telephone number of a contact person, and the type of library or information center. The type of library or information center represents the library's or information center's primary subject-matter acquisitions. The following types of libraries and information centers are used in the Directory: presidential, national, academic, engineering and science, health and medicine, general, law, multi-type, training center and/or instructional technical school, and special. The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) is the primary federal entity for collecting, analyzing, and reporting data related to education in the United States and other nations. It fulfills a congressional mandate to collect, collate, analyze, and report full and complete statistics on the condition of education in the United States; conduct and publish reports and specialized analyses of the meaning and significance of such statistics; assist state and local education agencies in improving their statistical systems; and review and report on education activities in foreign countries.

NCES activities are designed to address high priority education data needs; provide consistent, reliable, complete, and accurate indicators of education status and trends; and report timely, useful, and high quality data to the U.S. Department of Education, the Congress, the states, other education policymakers, practitioners, data users, and the general public.

We strive to make our products available in a variety of formats and in language that is appropriate to a variety of audiences. You, as our customer, are the best judge of our success in communicating information effectively. If you have any comments or suggestions about this or any other NCES product or report, we would like to hear from you. Please direct your comments to:

INTRODUCTION

The Directory of Federal Libraries and Information Centers is based on a survey of 1,234 federal libraries and information centers in the 50 states and the District of Columbia conducted in 1994. The survey was developed and funded by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) with the advice and guidance of a survey working group of the Federal Library and Information Center Committee of the Library of Congress and was conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau.

To be included in the Directory, an entity had to meet the following four criteria:

1. The facility was identified as a library (i.e., an organization that performs the functions of selection, acquisition, organization, presentation, retrieval, and provision of access to information sources) or information center (i.e., an organization that links requesters with information resources through established mechanisms);

2. The facility was staffed with at least one paid part-time or full-time librarian, technical information specialist, library technician, archivist, or other trained person;

3. The facility was considered to be a federal government operation, or at least half of its funding came from federal sources; and

4. The facility supported the information needs of a federal agency or supplied information as part of the agency's mission.

The final universe excludes approximately 800 facilities that are overseas (United States Information Service (USIS) and DOD) and/or elementary and secondary school libraries (DOD and Bureau of Indian Affairs). The overseas facilities were removed because of logistical problems in data collection. The elementary and secondary school libraries were excluded, since they have a different mission and function than most Federal libraries and are included in the NCES survey of school libraries.

ORGANIZATION

The Directory is organized by branch of government (i.e., Legislative, Judicial or Executive), by agency in the Legislative and Judicial Branches (e.g., the General Accounting Office in the Legislative Branch), and by department in the Executive Branch (e.g., the Department of Agriculture). Within department, agencies are listed alphabetically (e.g., the Agricultural Research Service in the Department of Agriculture) and within agency, libraries and information centers are listed by state where the states are arranged alphabetically.

DATA

Each library and information center has four entries: its name, its address, the name and telephone number of a contact person, and the type of library or information center. Data for these entries generally came from survey respondents. If a library or information center did not respond to the survey, the name and address of the library were obtained from the file used to conduct the survey. If a library or information center did not respond with the name or phone number of a contact person or to the question asking type of library, these entries are missing for that library or information center.

In the main, below the headquarters level, leading repetitions of the department or agency name have been omitted from the name block. In citations to a library or information center in other contexts and correspondence to them should begin with the name of the department and/or agency.

The type of library or information center represents the library's or information center's primary subject-matter acquisitions. The following types of libraries and information centers are used in the Directory:

Presidential: These specialize in the official records, memorabilia, literature, and other materials concerning the affairs of Presidents of the United States.

National: These have government-wide responsibilities and missions which concern both national and international matters.

Academic: These serve the faculty and students in colleges, universities, graduate and postgraduate schools.

Engineering and science: These encompass engineering, technology research, and science fields of interest.

Health and medicine: These have collections and services predominantly devoted to the medicine and health sciences.

General: These provide service to meet cultural, educational information, and recreational needs of a defined clientele (e.g., libraries on military bases and U.S. Information Agency libraries). They include libraries serving penal institutions and patient's libraries and information centers located in hospitals.

Law: These house collections of predominantly legal materials.

Multi-type: These house nonautonomous or semi-autonomous collections or are branches or facilities of more than one type. They generally support a variety of missions and subject-matter interests, with each component serving separately defined user groups that may not overlap.

Training center and/or instructional technical school: These support nondegree-granting education (vocational) centers.

Special: These are technical or research libraries or information centers which serve a specialized clientele and whose mission plan and scope of collections and services are limited to the subject interest of the host or parent organization or agency, but are not predominantly devoted to Engineering and Science, Health and Medicine, or Law, and do not fall within any of the other definitions in this section.

CAUTIONS IN USING THE DIRECTORY

It must be noted that the Directory represents the universe of domestic federal libraries and information centers as of September 30, 1994. When changes were available prior to publication from an authoritative source, updates were incorporated. However, in many cases updates were not available and, for these libraries and information centers, some or all of the entries may have changed since 1994. This caution is particularly true of the listed contact person, but it may also be, as in the case of the Bureau of Mines, that the agency no longer exists and the library or information center may no longer be in operation or may be part of another agency.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This Directory is a bi-product of the 1994 Census of federal libraries and information centers. The collection and publication of a census of this magnitude was a team effort. It would not have been accomplished without the support of the Federal information service personnel who provided data; the Executive Director and staff of the Federal Library and Information Center Committee (FLICC), Library of Congress; and the FLICC Survey Working Group and its task forces. FLICC works on behalf of Federal libraries and information centers around the world to achieve better utilization of resources and facilities through professional development, promotion of services, and resource sharing.

Thanks to the FLICC Survey Working Group (SWG) members who led the effort during the time frame these data were collected and processed. Past and present members are:

Sincere thanks to Samuel Barbett of NCES Surveys and Cooperative Systems Group who provided extensive technical support in computer programming and analysis. Thanks for his guidance and support.

In addition, members of the FLICC Preservation and Binding Working Group, especially Co-Chairs Karma Beal (Department of Commerce, National Institute of Standards and Technology, Office of Information Services) and Richard Myers (National Archives and Records Administration), developed much of the input for the survey Section K--Preservation.

Finally, special recognition goes to two FLICC staff members. Anna Bohlin provided cheerful, dedicated administrative support to the SWG throughout the project; and Dee Dolan contributed creative, innovative ideas and products to the outreach effort through her work as chief editor of FLICC publications.
